Help For Europe

ALTHOUGH THE WAR IN EUROPE has ended, it has not meant the end of suffering, privation and want on that continent. In countries formerly occupied by the Germans, stores of weapons, food and clothing, and it has been impossible to bring swift and abundant relief to those people who have directly under the shadow of war for more than four years. Unfortunately, as complex is the problem of rehabilitation and reconstruction in Europe, that although every effort is being made, food, clothing and other necessities were short, and the people have been deprived of the means of renewing them, since many farms and factories were destroyed by the Nazis in their long retreat, or demolished by bombs or artillery fire.

Fuel, Food And Clothes Needed

Food, fuel and clothing are probably the most essential articles needed for human comfort, and all of these have been, and are now, scarce in most parts of Europe. The people of the United Kingdom have also suffered from a shortage of all these things, and now we can picture conditions there which have been existing in Canada during the war, we realize that the people here have been extremely fortunate. Recently a complaint was made that the per capita consumption of food in wartime and in the post-war years. These figures showed that in Canada, 107 more pounds of food per person are consumed annually, than was the case before 1914. In contrast, there has been a drop of 31 pounds per person in the United Kingdom; 147 pounds per person in France, and 100 in Italy.

An Opportunity To Send Help

In the matter of clothing, Canada has, as a result of the looting and destruction during the war, millions of clothes in surplus. In Canada, as a result of this situation an appeal has been made for used clothing to be sent to Europe. This appeal is being made by the Canadian Red Cross, and the Committee has been asked to provide the means of sending this help to improve conditions for those whose families and homes have been destroyed. The direct path of help to Europe has been the great deal in the liberation of Europe, and there is no doubt but that they will now respond generously to this opportunity to contribute to the comfort of the people there.

Q—Why are all food products included in the list of items which will be rationed?
A—Food is the basis upon which life is sustained. During the war, food was rationed, and the ration program was made more effective by the rationing of food. This was done to ensure that everyone had enough to eat, and that the food was distributed fairly. This is why food products are included in the list of items which will be rationed.
